Charter Revision Committee Astonished by the Measure Introduced.

MAY DEFEAT THE COMMITTEE'S WORK

Conditions at Present Such as Will Likely End the Consultations Without Any Definite Result.

The points agreed upon by the committee and incorporated in the Andersen bill are the general policy to do away with boards centralize duties and responsibilities Board of Public Works and Advisory board; compulsory publication of annua reports; requiring the council to pass ordinances regulating charges by public utility corporations; compelling street railway companies to pave between tracks; au thorizing an asphalt repair plant, and power of the council to order paving unhindered within 4,000 feet of the court house The other amendments have not had the approval of the committee and some of them have not even been considered. Committee May Die.

Internal complications have risen in th charter revision committee that may curtail if not destroy any usefulness of which it may be possible. The other members have placed upon W. T. Nelson, lawyer and member of the last legislature, the task of drafting into legal shape all the amendments desired. This Nelson is un-willing to do. He says he will cheerfully draft his own suggestions, but thinks the city should appropriate a few hundred dollars to pay a skilled lawyer to whip all the revisions into form. City officials and others demur at this and say that such a course would lay them open to public

The last two meetings of the committee have amounted to nothing, due to meager attendance. Whether the prime movers oblivion has not been decided.

WEATHER GREETS Bright Day Welcomes Queen of Song

Omaha Engage-

Mme. Melba, prima donna soprano, who is to sing at the Auditorium Friday night, and her company came into the city yesterday, an hour late, from Cedar Rapids. Those adopted the pretty superstition of "queen's English sovereign.

"Melba weather," said a member of the starry nights. You would be surprised at the steady persistence of this thing. We come into a city and are told, 'Yesterday and all week it has been drizzly and cloudy and disagreeable.' (This is not to say of Omaha, which I know is always bright in sunshine. Yes, sir, Melba weather."

It may interest many to know that the great singer particularly likes this section of the United States. The clear, sharp days, with a blue sky overhead, greatly appeal to her. It is the popular superstition that people with $2,000-a-night voices are se careful with them and so fearful of a little draft which might perhaps under some conditions cause a little disturbance of the vocal chords which would possibly in the course of thirty or forty years impair the organ of sweetness-it is the general idea that such people live dreadful lives of seclusion, muffied and fended from the dan gerous air. To these people it may be a surprise to learn that the possessor of probably the greatest voice of the present took a four-mile walk during the afternoon. But such is the custom of Mme. Melba.

Melba's Long Tour. The prima donna denies herself to all but a few friends on her long tour of the country, which began in Portland, Me. and after a circuit of the states will end in the east again, after fifty concerts. She has traveled in her private car with three servants and two maids, and, for companionship, Signorina Sassoli, her protege and the mother of the latter, Signoria Sassoll. The other members of the company travel separately and are now at the Her

While the artist allows herself some liberties on the days when she does not sing, she is careful to be in the best condition or concert days, and will probably remain in her car all day today.

but they advanced the rates with the expectation that it would have to go their way and that they would reap the harvest. The southern railroads can move grain to the guif at 25 cents and make a good thing out of the haul. If the Interstate Commerce commission gets mixed up in this thing I don't know when and where where the commission is going to make any capital out of it. The eastern exchanges are sore at the action of the Missouri Pacific, and I see where they have grain trade. The Philadelphia exchange has even gone so far as to send a resolution to President Roosevelt endorsing the protest and informing him of the alleged discrimination by eastern roads against confined to the present; they are alarmed

The piece has been seen in Omaha before and has been adequately described at other times. It was the first dance given this season by this club, but its reputation gained in other seasons served to call out a large and very congenial crowd of young folks. Then, too, the fact that the dance was given for the benefit of the cooking school at St. Catherine's was an incentive to many devotees of Terpsichore to attend.

D. J. Hurley was master of ceremonies for the occasion, and he received very effective aid and assistance from the following officers of the club: Miss Nellie Murphy, president; Miss Stella Callahan, vice president; Miss Mary Flynn, secretary and treasurer. The reception committee was composed of Mesdames Charles Woods, Fred Gwynne, Sadie Lane and Miss Mary Neu.

It is expected the club will later decide to give two or three other dances, the proceeds to go to certain local institutions of very worthy character, as the club is not seeking monetary gain.

course to put an end to these specific abuses. The compromise involved a pledge by the interested parties, both to our committee and to the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, that the abuses of which we complained should immediately cease and be absolutely eliminated and the law and ordinances against sales to minors and sales after midnight should be strictly observed. Teh parties who make the outcry against this "compromise" proclaim that it will not be carried out. In this to doubt the wish is fainer to the thought; but should the agreement be violated it would involve a breach of faith on the part of the saloon kespers and breweries that we do not believe the Fire and Police board would tolerate. We believe that most, if not all, the parties to the agreement want to see it kept. We believe the Fire and Police commissioners will see that it is kept. If that is done the three most glaring abuses of the saloon business in this city will be abolished. Had we rejected these terms we might have prevented the granting of licenses to a few applicants, whose places would probably be taken in other names, against which we would have no legal ground of protest, and without any assurance of suppressing the abuses against which we would have no legal ground of protest, and without any assurance of suppressing the abuses against which we complained, and the sweeping reform gained would have been lost to the public. The conditions of the agreement must apply not only to the protested saloons, but to every saloon in the city. If this were all that the Civic Federation had ever accomplished it would be a complete justification for its course. We expect criticism, opposition and slander from those who desire a continuance of the old regime, but we confidently look for the support of all who desire the supremacy of the law and an era of decency and progress.
